

Sistema TERA

Relay TPS 2.

The power element is basically made up of a power relay which is switched by the actuator output (or straight from the central unit). The connection is by cable – the contacts of the actuator's memory relay switch voltage on the power relay coil. The power element must be connected to the distribution network voltage, so it will mostly be located near an actuating unit (fan, recuperation unit, etc.)..